Market trends

AI: larger threats and productivity gains, two sides of the same coin

AI-enhanced fraud is growing rapidly, with agentic systems able to run complete campaigns. Meanwhile, companies are applying AI to accelerate productivity.

Post-quantum moving from planning to piloting

Government mandates and Big Tech roadmaps, including Microsoft's timeline, are setting deadlines for PQC readiness. Customers are also engaging on migration ahead of any requirement, treating readiness as a competitive differentiator.

Compliance becoming a differentiator

Governments and regulated industries increasingly require independently validated security, making compliance a key factor in vendor selection and long-term customer trust.

Identity lifecycle becomes a strategic priority

The market is moving beyond authentication toward securing the full identity lifecycle, including verification, enrollment, recovery, governance, and assurance. At the same time, digital identity initiatives are accelerating globally.

AI, post-quantum readiness and validated compliance are increasing demand for hardware-backed trust across the identity lifecycle.

Highlights from Q2 26

Product & technology

Launch of YubiKey 5.8 & FIPS validation

- YubiKey 5.8 extends hardware-backed auth to verified authorization (payments, signing, AI agents)*
- Completed FIPS 140-3 validation across YubiKey 5 FIPS portfolio & YubiHSM 2

Commercial news

OpenAI and Google expand hardware auth

- Beginning Sept 1, OpenAI will require Trusted Access for Cyber members to use hardware-backed passkeys to access frontier models.
- On July 1, Google added NFC passkey support on Android. Yubico's Passkey Enabler is now generally available.

OpenAI

Operational efficiency
